ANGLO-GREEK FORCES STRUGGLE TO HOLD THEIR DEFENSE LINE

British On Right Flank Hurl Back Waves of Nazi Infantry

German Pressure Increases On The Western Sector of Line

By A. E. Angelopoulos
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

ATHENS, Apr. 18 — (INS)—Anglo-Greek forces along the Hellenic defense line struggled today to hold back increasingly heavy German assaults all along the front.

Latest military reports reaching Athens stated the British on the right flank had hurled back waves of Nazi infantry attacking in the region below Mt. Olympus and claimed the Germans had failed to make a single dent in the main British front.

But it was admitted that Nazi advances on the left flank—manned by Greek troops—south of the Monastir Gap "may entail rectifications of the line."

In other words, according to these dispatches, German pressure on the western sector of the line is increasing and the defenders there may be forced to fall back.

(A British radio broadcast picked up by CBS said the government aid in Athens had broadcast an appeal to the Greek people, urging them to remain calm and adding:

("Despite furious resistance from our forces, supported by the British, the position of the front is unfavorable as the enemy continues to advance. But the public must remain calm. It must not listen to rumors such as have been spread that the enemy is at Larissa, from which town he is still quite a distance away to the north.")

On the eastern and center flanks, it was claimed, the Germans have lost tens of thousands of casualties, including the equivalent of two divisions knocked out in one sector alone.

But in Albania on the far western wing, it was admitted officially that Greek troops have staged a withdrawal and abandoned two key towns to attacking Italian troops. The Italians, like the Germans, suffered staggering losses, it was claimed.

The official Athens radio announced that the right wing of the allied line—between Katerina, 25 miles north of Mt. Olympus, and Servia—was "holding well against a powerful German attack."

"Fierce battles are occurring everywhere," this announcement said.

"The enemy, despite his superiority of forces, has received heavy blows. The German air force has been extremely active but has suffered great losses."

GARDENS CONSIDERED AS SOROSIS MEMBERS MEET

Film, "How Does Your Garden Grow?", Seen; Woman Tells of Herb Gardening

MRS. CORTS IN CHARGE

LANGHORNE, Apr. 18—The conservation and garden section of Langhorne Sorosis presented as its program yesterday a motion picture in color, entitled "How Does Your Garden Grow?" This film was shown through courtesy of an agricultural chemical company, with one of the company representatives in charge.

The preparation of the soil, the choosing of seed, planting, and care of the plants, were included in the presentation; and also shown were pictures dealing with care of lawns, shrubs, etc.

Mrs. Carl Corts, chairman of the garden section, was in charge of the program, she being presented to the members gathered in the library by the presiding officer, Mrs. Leslie Ransom.

Mrs. Paul Kirshmann presented a talk on "Herb Gardening," advising that it is much better to start an herb garden by using seed. She told how back as far as 1700 in this country, each woman had her own herb garden, probably 4x4 feet. Today, she informed, that botanists and chemists have become conscious of the scarcity of herbs, due to the war. That the herb garden can be revived was one point brought out, although seed is scarce, it was said. Mrs. Kirshmann told that many people use wagon wheels so the spokes will separate the herbs.

Mrs. Horace Townsend sang three songs, her accompanist being Mrs. Harry Friedrich.

A conservation and garden meeting was announced for May 13th at Bowman's Hill.

Allies in Greece Withdraw To New Defense

Cairo, Apr. 18 — Continuous heavy and reinforced German assaults upon the British-Greek lines in Northern Greece today forced withdrawal of the Allies to a new line of defense.

British Concede Situation On Greek Frontier Serious

London, Apr. 18—The military situation on the Greek front is "serious," British authorities conceded today, but they flatly denied German claims that Nazi forces have broken through the Anglo-Greek defense line.

Military quarters said collapse of Yugoslavian resistance opened up a gap and caused the Greeks to withdraw in order to make connections with the British line.

Latest reports, London authorities stated, indicate that the British Imperial forces in Greece have proved superior to the enemy "when they meet on equal terms."

Here and There in Bucks County Towns

Plantings of weeping willows and hemlocks in Lenape Park, Sellersville will replace the buttonwood trees which it was found necessary to cut down on the creek bank, making way for a new channel.

Sea Scouts of the Scoutship Ranger did the work under the supervision of Skipper F. P. Kemmerer. They planted a dozen of each, with willows from 5 to 6 feet high and the other trees about three feet high. They expect to plant leaf trees this week.

When the large trees were cut down at the time the new bridge was being built last year there was a storm of protest over the matter. The new ones will enhance the beauty of the park in a few years, and with the use of some of the evergreens at the park nursery the park commisison plans to make the lower end of its tract the most attractive part of town. A new entrance is to be built in the middle of the bridge in the near future.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT
(Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

A Dismaying Choice

Washington, April 17.

REACTION to the designation by the President of his friend Mr. Harry Hopkins to supervise and control the seven-billion-dollar lend-lease program is good in only one group — to wit: that of the extreme New Dealers, who from the beginning have insisted that the defense effort should be in the hands of New Dealers and not businessmen.

—o—

NOW they have their wish and they are greatly rejoiced. But no one else is. On the contrary, inside the Administration, as well as outside, feelings have been stirred which range all the way from mild discouragement to intense indignation. Certainly it is not a selection calculated to inspire the country with confidence either in the competency or the disinterestedness with which this vital task will be administered.

—o—

THE most common comment in Washington is that if it had been known in advance that Mr. Roosevelt intended to put Mr. Hopkins in charge of the expenditure of this seven billions the lend-lease bill would not have been passed. There seems more than a little justification for that statement. It is, in fact, difficult to understand how the President could believe that Mr. Hopkins is physically or mentally up to this job, or why he should have selected him, except on the theory that he intends to keep power wholly in his own hands and permit no one else to make any important decision.

—o—

TO those anxious that in this great effort the minimum of time, energy and money shall be wasted, the Hopkins assignment is regarded as perhaps the most serious mistake yet made since our defense

BENSALEM STUDENTS TO GIVE ANNUAL PLAY

Production To Be Staged In Auditorium at Cornwells Heights, April 25th

HAS UNIQUE SETTING

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Apr. 18—The annual school play of Bensalem Township high school will be presented Friday evening, April 25th.

It is a folk play called "Sun-up," that has a unique setting in the Carolina mountains at the time the United States entered the World War in 1917. The theme of a young man's ideals concerning his duty to his country is interwoven with the plot of a mountain feud in a manner that produces a climax of gripping interest and suspense.

The part of Rufe, the young lenow, is being taken by William Dunn, a sophomore who won acting laurels in the title role of last year's school play, "Galahad Jones," Rufe's sweetheart, Emmy, is Miriam Carlson, an attractive junior. The dominating character part is the boy's mother, Widow Cagle. It is being played very capably by Marie Willard, a senior who has had a variety of roles on the Bensalem stage. Dick Colbert, another senior with considerable acting ability, will represent a mountain sheriff. George Hutton, a freshman who displayed his talent earlier this year in "Penrod," will have the difficult role of a deserter.

Character parts that add reality and humor to the play are those of a mountain preacher, taken by Owen

Proposals of "Union Now" Outlined by Dr. W. P. Maddox

Dr. William P. Maddox, associate professor of history at the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, appearing before an audience in the Travel Club home, last evening, considered the subject of "Union Now."

The speaker outlined the proposals of "Union Now" as made by Clarence Streit in the book of that title, which suggests that the English speaking democracies federate, just as the United States are federated, giving over to superior authority the problems which they have in common, and leaving to the individual countries their rights as individual nations.

Dr. Maddox outlined the growth of business and science, as contrasted with the static situation of political economy. He stated that "It is necessary for the democratic nations to show ability to keep up with the times by their willingness to organize to combat the influence of the totalitarian powers."

Mrs. William duHamel introduced the speaker of the evening. Dr. Maddox answered questions asked by individuals in the audience.

JOEL GUIN TELLS THAT FUTURE HOLDS FAR MORE THAN PAST

Opportunities More Vast Than Ever Before, Young Man Tells 3 Audiences

ADVICE GIVEN STUDENTS

World Traveler Tells of Glories of U. S. A.; Heard by Service Clubs

"You say that opportunities are closed"?

"No, the future holds far more than the past ever has."

This was the manner in which Joel B. Guin prefaced his three addresses here yesterday. Mr. Guin, a lecturer from the National Forum in Chicago, Ill., addressed three groups. His first talk was delivered at noon before the Bristol Rotary Club; and following this he spoke to students of Bristol high school at an assembly period in the high school; and in the evening he was the speaker at a meeting of the Exchange Club. His discourses were very similar.

The speaker told in no uncertain terms of the lifetime of opportunities, the wealth in human and natural resources, and the boundless freedom and beauties of these United States of America. His subject was "What's Right with America," and by the time the concluding sentences in his stirring talks were given, his auditors had visioned to a greater degree within an hour the vast wealth in every field with which God has blessed this country, than many of them had ever dreamed existed.

Speaking at the high school yesterday afternoon, Mr. Guin, a young man of 32 years, who has travelled more than 475,000 miles in the United States of America, in the province of Canada, in Mexico, Europe and North Africa, proceeded to show that the people of the United States, representing but one-seventh of the world's population, have and nejoy not only the greatest freedom to be found on the face of the earth, but have within their possession or power large percentages of the world's minerals, produce 34 per cent of the world's coal, 35 per cent of the world's electrical power, use 40 per cent of the radios manufactured, are making great strides in the field of science and medicine, so that once highly fatal diseases are now going "by the board"—"and yet we are just beginning to scratch the surface."

"Most of the population of the world would like to be in the United States with you. Their condition would make your heart bleed if you saw them. The people of nearly every nation envy you. They hate you, too, because they would like to be over here. Here you can think as you please. You can do and say what you please. You can worship as you desire; listen to what radio programs you wish; read the newspapers of your choice; and engage in any business you wish, just so it is within the law. No, we do not approach a Utopia, it is true; all is not as it should be. I'm not perfectly satisfied entirely. There are some things that need to be changed. But in spite of that we live in the most glorious country that ever existed.

"I personally am not wealthy. For the first half of my life I struggled for life itself; and was as poor as a church mouse. But I would rather struggle in this nation than be king in any other nation. And let me give you young folks some advice. Stay in this nation, and save your money. But if you want to know why I say that, just take a little jaunt down to Mexico, and in five minutes' time you'll understand what I mean. You will see in five minutes' time filth, disease, garbage in the streets, scum everywhere, open sewage, poverty—the people merely existing in this 'veil of tears' until death releases them. Here we have people who at least know how to use a little soap—and appreciate the privileges of living. What is the difference in these two countries, side by side. We have all nationalities within the borders of the United States, and still we're different. I think the difference is that we have freedom. Our minds are not held down. We've advanced so far because we are free. That is one reason for our strength and progress."

Liberty was defined by Mr. Guin as "The right to do as you please so long as you do not infringe on the rights of others," then he added "So we have made a comparative success of democracy. Frankly I consider the human resources our greatest source of strength—or more value than our natural resources."

After listing the separate resources in the world of ores and minerals; and telling of the great discoveries in serums, drugs, and vitamins which are of great aid in battling disease and death, the speaker told of the chances thus afforded countless more people who are given new lease on life. "It means that those at the bottom will be able to compete with those at the top in this social revolution if they have a desire to compete." The advances in other fields were noted, with the excuse given by Hitler that he is fighting for more and needed land, being contrast-

WHEN SPRING COMES

Spring, 1941, means too many different things to too many different people for anyone to gloat over its arrival.

A winter which had outworn its welcome suddenly decamped. In its place has come the sunniest, most inspiring weather seen hereabouts in many a moon. There are bird songs in the morning. Cyclists sprout in every street, defying traffic dangers with their customary insouciance. The sound of the roller skate is heard. Symptoms of spring fever are discernible in every office.

Man could enjoy spring, particularly the present brand, a great deal more heartily if the same phenomena of nature did not mean tragedy to millions of people. For there is death at the barricades and in the gorges, in the homes and in the streets of great cities, in the air and on the sea.

And all this is because of spring, the time waited for by the Axis war lords. Indeed, three of the four seasons, all yet to come, mean suffering and death to innocent people living in the war zones. Only winter, the least admirable of all, gives periodic release from fear.

For the sake of sanity and strength, there must be times when this picture is put out of mind to be supplanted by revelling in the purely physical aspects of the changing season. Wordsworth heard in nature the still, sad music of humanity. Americans can hear it now, more clearly than he ever dreamed. And because of that there must be moments when the ears are stopped to the tragic sounds and man breathes deeply of oblivion.

NEARING THE FRONT

President Roosevelt's own interpretation of his order "pulling the stopper" from the Red Sea zone is that American ships may carry war supplies to Egypt as a neutral nation.

The further interpretation, of course, is that having delivered war supplies in Egypt, such supplies become immediately available to Britain and its allies so long as the British control Egypt and have facilities for further transport. It is therefore conceivable that supplies consigned to that country eventually might reach Greece, Yugoslavia or Turkey—the three countries for whose encouragement the Red Sea opening apparently was designed.

As things stood at the time of Mr. Roosevelt's assurances to Greece and Yugoslavia that they would receive American war supplies, the real task of making the promise good was left to the British, inasmuch as the American neutrality law forebade American ships to carry the promised supplies. Now a roundabout route is theoretically open for American transport of such supplies.

In some respects the Roosevelt order seems to be somewhat in the nature of a gesture. Whether it will be merely friendly or whether it will be genuinely helpful will be determined by events not too far removed from the present.

The North Carolina, America's newest battleship, can hurl ten tons of metal twenty miles in a single broadside. That ought to assure it plenty of leeway in any ocean.

"THE GORGON'S MASK"

by Van Wyck Mason

SYNOPSIS

As war clouds thicken over Tientsin and other scenes of international friction in China, Howard Nevins, ostensibly an American big game hunter, reaches Honolulu. Within the hour of his arrival, he receives a mysterious 'phone warning, a woman's voice urging that he return to the States at once. Annoyed but undaunted, Nevins attends a dinner tendered by wealthy Abner Polk. Prominent among the guests is Baron von Rentner, a reputed German industrialist. Alluring Phèdre Renoire as hostess is the subject of considerable sotto voce discussion. Dinner over, the gentlemen are about to join the ladies . . .

CHAPTER TWO

Young Lieutenant Clark's deep voice broke in on the conversation, saying: "Don't be afraid, Miss Renoire. Honest, we'll be down in a minute. A man in his right senses can't stay away from you."

"An idiot!" grunted Baron von Rentner, fixing the speaker with a baleful stare. "In the Reich army such remarks would not be made in mix-ed company."

Polk aroused himself from a low-pitched conversation with a slender, always smiling Japanese who had sat at his left during dinner. Nevins heard him say distinctly:

"Well, Mr. Kanamura, I'm afraid you're too pessimistic. I'm quite sure there will be no war." A special emphasis lay heavily on that last sentence.

Von Rentner and the Japanese both looked up so quickly that they attracted the calm scrutiny of the sportsman's restless gray-blue eyes.

"What makes you so sure, mein freund?" Baron von Rentner demanded with a heavy geniality belying the sudden flush that rose above his stiff white collar.

Abner Polk looked grimly away. "We in the iron and steel business have ways of knowing. Besides, I think the peoples of the world are at last getting fed up with war."

Apparently the word "war" was a torch to a hitherto sealed verbal magazine, for the girl whom all Honolulu knew as the fabulously wealthy Abner Polk's favorite halted in the doorway, and with her also stepped a tawny young woman, and a vivacious maiden of uncertain age.

"Oh," gushed the latter, "I've been dying to talk of it all night." And she led the almost eager return of the ladies to the silver-and-crystal-littered table, where the napkins lay like tiny collapsed tents at each place.

Only Phèdre Renoire's dark eyes strayed uneasily about. Then she paused just beyond the sportsman's chair and said a little breathlessly to the Japanese, "Oh, I am sure it is simply hysteria, this war talk. Don't you think so too, Mr. Kanamura?"

Evidently Mr. Kanamura was a little disconcerted by the directness of this query, for he blinked two or three times behind his gold-rimmed spectacles before he said: "I am sure the affair will be amicably settled. Is that not so, Mr. Nevins?"

"Please say it is just ugly talk," Phèdre Renoire pleaded, while her large black eyes seemed to find strong elements of interest in Nevins.

"Why," demanded the big game hunter plaintively, "do rows like this always have to happen when I want a bit of sport? I come all the way out to Hawaii to enjoy some deep sea fishing and, just because of it, Japan and America start calling each other names."

"You have not answered me," Phèdre Renoire pointed out. "I really must insist on it, in spite of your delightful evasion."

"Look here, Mademoiselle Renoire," protested the Coast Artillery officer, "let's not get that started again. You know how strongly we all feel about it—the murder of American citizens—" facile features of Phèdre Renoire. Now they were quite stiff and pale.

"Mais oui—it must have been a bird," she murmured quickly. "I see no boat out there."

"There must be a boat," insisted the owner of Kalua, who had also become strangely subdued. "And it didn't sound like any bird I ever heard."

"Well, there's surely no light out there, nor any boat—and I've good eyes," Clark agreed after studying

A moment after the agonizing cry from the darkness shocked the party, Von Rentner thrust his head out of the window.

"Murder?" From across the table where a silver bowl of hibiscus glowed like living fire, the Japanese had straightened a little, and though his thin lips were still drawn into a smile, the look he bent on the white-clad artillery officer was of a sort that prompted Nevins to pour water on fast-kindling sparks.

"I say, let's go down, the coffee might be getting cold."

Catherine Lloyd, the lithe American girl who had sat facing the host, refused to take the hint.

"No," she cried. "I was at Joyce Carmen's this morning and I heard all kinds of talk about what would happen when the Jap fleet arrives."

"Mercy!" Miss Sutherland, the Englishwoman, clasped bony hands in elaborate alarm. "What did they say?"

"They say that the Japs have secret orders"—she cast a challenging look at Kanamura—"to shell Honolulu! And if—"

Quite abruptly the speaker fell silent; the company became rigid at the sound of a scream outside. It was unmistakably the cry of some human in extreme terror or fearful pain.

"Du lieber Gott!" cried Von Rentner hoarsely and thrust his blunt head far out of the window.

"Why—why, what was that?" stammered Catherine Lloyd.

"It was maybe a sea bird?" suggested Kanamura with a sudden uneasiness that made his eyes waver behind their golden spectacles. "What do you think, Mr. Nevins? You are familiar with wild life, no?"

"It might have been," Nevins said briefly. His eyes wandered over the startled faces of the company until they came to rest upon the normally the sea. "Guess it was just a freak echo. There's usually a bunch of beach boys and their girl friends foolin' 'round yonder." He jerked his head to the left.

"That's probably it," Abner Polk hurriedly agreed and turned to select a cigar from an elaborate mahogany humidor.

Just then the Filipino butler, excited, hurried in with a newspaper across the front page of which ran a black scarehead three inches high: "JAPAN SENDS U. S. ULTIMATUM!" And in a slightly smaller type: "Shells Kill More Americans Guarding Transpacific Property! War Demanded!"

The reactions of the various guests to this second shock were characteristic. Kanamura drew in his breath with a little hissing sound.

"They've done it," cried Lieutenant Clark excitedly. "Do you see? They've killed more Americans! That'll mean war!"

"By heavens, Von Rentner, this is outrageous," stormed Abner Polk. "I told you—I—"

"Herr Polk!" The Prussian stiffened and his mouth set itself in a hard cruel line.

"Doubtlessly," broke in the Japanese calmly, "the newspapers in my country are saying things equally ridiculous."

"Wilson!" Desperately Catherine Lloyd caught at Lieutenant Clark's white-clad arm. "Please remember—"

The Coast Artillery officer turned a flushed face. "But did you hear what he said?" he growled. "Such news is not ridiculous!"

Today's Quiet Moment

(By Howard L. Zepp, Th. M.)

We thank Thee, O God, that we can call Thee Father, for no parent ever loves as deeply as Thou. We acknowledge with sorrow that we have grieved Thee time and again, for even when we would do good, evil is present. Keep us from temptation; make us happy Christians. We thank Thee for the daily blessings of life and that Thou art mindful of us when we least think. Let no grief cause distrust; let no hardship silence our praise. Amen.

CATERING TO CHILDREN

Cater A Bit To Your Children's Whims and Fancies—It Pays Excellent Dividends

Far too often we try to force this food or that upon a child who is very decided in his likes and dislikes. Sometimes this forcing program turns children forever against excellent foods. It is usually better to diplomatically cater to such children and endeavor to serve the foods they refuse in forms where they appeal. For instance, here are two recipes for those children who refuse to drink milk. Try these desserts and see whether they are refused or not.

Caramel Rennet-Custard

1 rennet tablet
1 tablespoon cold water
1 pint milk, ordinary or homogenized
¼ cup boiling water
¼ cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla

Dissolve rennet tablet by crushing in cold water in a cup. Put sugar in a small saucepan, and heat carefully, stirring constantly until melted and golden brown. Add water drop by drop to caramelize sugar, and stir until dissolved. If caramelized sugar becomes hard, add water and heat slowly until the sugar dissolves. Make rennet-custards according to directions given on package, using caramel sirup for sugar. Chill in refrigerator. Serves 5.

(Note: The rennet enzyme in rennet tablets makes milk more readily digestible and performs the first step in its digestion.)

Chocolate Milk Shake

1 package chocolate rennet powder
1 quart cold milk
1 pint chocolate ice cream

Place chocolate rennet powder and cold milk in a chilled bowl. Whip with rotary beater until powder is thoroughly dissolved. Set in refrigerator and serve within one-half hour. Immediately before serving add a small scoop of ice cream to each glass. Serves 5.

ON THE SCREENS

GRAND THEATRE

Zane Grey's "Western Union" has been made into a memorable picture by 20th Century-Fox. Filmed in brilliant Technicolor and produced on a breath-taking scale, it opened last night at the Grand Theatre.

Its brilliant cast, headed by Robert Young, Randolph Scott, Dean Jagger and Virginia Gilmore, brings to life all the colorful characters created by the West's greatest story-teller in his latest best-seller. Others featured include John Carradine, Chill Wills, Slim Summerville and Barton MacLane.

Romance, action, drama and thrilling adventure are all part of the spectacle in "Western Union," which opens in the roaring boom town of frontier Omaha—where the only law was a blazing six-shooter.

Dean Jagger, portraying Edward Creighton, the telegraph builder, starts a huge wagon-train rolling out across the prairies. Their job is to build the telegraph over a West infested by renegades and savage Indians.

BRISTOL THEATRE

What would happen if a human brain was transplanted into the skull of a gorilla?

The answer to that exciting question is dealt with in "The Monster and the Girl," which comes today to the screen of the Bristol Theatre.

In addition to George Houston, "The Lone Rider," the picture which is today at the Bristol Theatre, has in the cast such well known actors as Al St. John, Carl Hackett, Lee Powell, Forrest Taylar, Frank Hagney and Buddy Roosevelt.

"Adventures of Captain Marvel" is also showing.

RITZ THEATRE

The screen's first mystery musical is the claim for Kay Kyser's new film, "You'll Find Out," at the Ritz Theatre today, which combine sweet trills with shrill shrieks and shivery mystery with silvery melody. In fact, it well deserves the description—melodyrama.

Featured with the Ol' Professor of the College of Musical Knowledge are the three formeost merchants of menace in pictures today. Peter ("M") Lorre, Boris ("Frankenstein") Karloff and Bela ("Dracula") Lugosi, along with a notable supporting cast.

ed with the fact that in this counary scientists have made it possible to grow tomatoes one foot in diameter without a foot of land; "and in California there is a man who can raise 1200 bushels of potatoes to the acre . . . So another justification for war is taken away."

The discovery of processes of producing great quantities of gasoline from coal, and of securing gasoline from waste materials, were touched upon; the speaker then mentioning that even though 100 octane gasoline is the most powerful in use at present, 150 octane gasoline "is just around the corner. They tell us that will be capable of driving an airplane 750 miles per hour, and the day of 200 octane gasoline is foreseen.

"What vast fields still lie before us, young people! And those who come to our shores from abroad are privileged to share in this wealth of opportunity. The blood in your veins doesn't count. It is the ideas in your brain that determine whether you're a fit subject to be an American."

The 350 synthetic substitutes for rubber, the substitutes for silk, camphor; and the production and uses of cotton, tin, etc., were taken into consideration in turn, as Mr. Guin showed the wonderful future in store for the person with initiative, and with the power to appreciate privileges.

"You say that you don't have your share of this country's wealth? Let us look at it this way—We have one-half of the world's telephones, one for every seven people, while in Italy there is one for each 77. New York city alone has as many telephones as there are to be found in British India, China and Russia. We own 75 per cent of the world's gold supply. We own and operate 79 per cent of the buses in the world. . . . The English people admit that their living in the British Isles is like that of a peasant compared to that in the United States, in spite of the fact they have the best living in Europe." In comparison, Mr. Guin gave figures showing that an automobile costing $800 here would cost $2500 to $3000 in England; the gasoline to operate it here costs approximately 15 to 17 cents per gallon compapred to about 70 cents a gallon in England; while a license plate here averages $12 or $15 compared to $150 in England. "And the wage scale in England is only one-half of what ours is, and on the continent of Europe the wage scale is about one-tenth of what it is in the United States. "We are a nation of rich people, for even our poorest people have luxuries as compared to the rest of the world. And in all other respects, we are not a weak nation, we are a strong nation.

"I've heard rabble rousers who ask, 'Are you getting enough?' Why don't they ask 'Are you giving enough?' 'He profits most who serves best,' you know. . . . I didn't appreciate my opportunities when I went to high school. I thought I knew more than the teachers. I quit school, and in the years that followed I picked spuds in Idaho, harvested wheat in Kansas, fished in the Pacific Ocean, served as a waiter in New York State, picked fruit in California, was a seaman on the Atlantic Ocean and to the Mediterranean. I didn't need brains for any of that. I started out to set the world on fire, and I didn't kindle a spark. Then I saw my mistake, and went back to school at the age of 26 years. I paid the price. I had been employed in every State in the Union, and unemployed in every State. I found out that if you can't hold a job, you don't deserve a job.

"Young people, take advantage of your opportunities. It takes training. But if you're willing to train yourselves there is a chance for you in this country, and who wants more than a chance? The schools are wide open for those who will learn."

Concrete things that make one proud to be a citizen of this great country were then brought to the students in word pictures by the young man, as he described the Grand Coulee dam, the greatest thing ever made by man; the Delaware Aqueduct, the biggest aqueduct in the world; the Key West bridge, the longest in the world; the San Francisco bridge which has the largest single span in the world; the Mt. Palomar telescope with a 200-inch reflector; the big trees of the Pacific coast, "God's oldest creation;" the highest commercial highway in the world, located in the mountains of Colorado; the Grand Canyon of the Colorado, the only place in the world where there can be "read" the entire history of the world as the chasm sides stretch 8000 feet from the river to the rim.

"I do have my share of all this beauty and freedom and opportunity. "America is alright. May God bless her."

The official high command communique gave little information other than news of the Greek withdrawal on the Albanian front. It said:

"In western Macedonia no essential changes in the situation have occurred.

"On the Albanian front certain movements of evacuation have been carried out without impediment. Klisura and Ersek have been evacuated."

A spokesman for the Greek press ministry declared the fighting has entered its most "serious stage" and that "tremendous casualties" have been inflicted on the Germans.

He added that all attacks on the Italian front had been repulsed with heavy enemy losses.

Military advices to Athens had cost the Germans the equivalent of two divisions in casualties in two days of fighting on the right wing and that severe fighting was in progress on the central sector around Grevena.

Along one section of the allied front, it was claimed, German corpses were heaped so high that enemy soldiers were moving forward "protected by hedges formed by their dead comrades."

Predict "Personal Axis Talk"

Rome, Apr. 18—An extremely important "personal Axis talk"—somewhere in Germany and probably in Berlin—was predicted by informed Italian quarters today.

These quarters said the conference probably would be held within the next few days.

It was expected the conference will draw up the main lines of the anticipated partitioning of Yugoslavia, since that nation now is expected to disappear from the map, leaving only a tiny Serbia, or perhaps none at all.

Pot Luck That's Good Luck

Next time you are supposed to take a "covered dish and sandwiches" to a church supper, treat your friends and neighbors to Boston bean casserole. It has the delicious flavor of the wonderful baked beans people go to church suppers for, but there's a different quirk in it, too, which will bring you honors for your originality. Mealy oven-baked beans bearing a delicious old-fashioned flavor are combined with onion, green pepper and celery in a casserole and baked until the flavors have blended to perfection.

Boston Bean Casserole

Cut into squares—
8 strips bacon.
Fry until crisp with—
1 tablespoon finely chopped onion
4 tablespoons chopped green pepper.
Pour off excess fat, then add—
1 cup chopped celery
2 medium (18-oz.) cans oven-baked beans, Boston-style. Mix well, then pour into casserole.
Cut into small pieces—
Additional strip of bacon.

Sprinkle bacon over top of casserole. Bake in a moderate oven (375° F.) 40 minutes, or until brown. Serves 6.

Different Doings with Meat Pies

Solve the problem of what to do with some leftover mashed potatoes and roast beef or lamb when you want to make a quick meal of them with this simple recipe for a savory and altogether delicious quick cottage pie. Using prepared home-style vegetable soup, you do not have to take time for cooking vegetables and measuring the seasonings, though it serves the purpose of a complete meal that everyone enjoys to the full.

Quick Cottage Pie

Brown—
1½ to 2 cups diced left-over meat (lamb, beef, pork or veal) in—
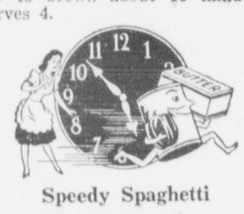
2 tablespoons butter.
Sprinkle with—
3 tablespoons flour.
Mix well, then add—
1 medium (16-oz.) can home-style vegetable soup. Cook, stirring constantly, until thick and boiling.
Pour into a baking dish or casserole and cover with—
A layer of mashed potato made fluffy again by beating up with a small amount of hot milk.

Place in a moderate oven (375° F.) to brown about 15 minutes. Serves 4.



Speedy Spaghetti

Time flies, but appetites are always with us. On the days which are the fullest, you can save some of the fleeting minutes by using delicious prepared spaghetti in tomato sauce in a variety of ways to satisfy the hunger of your family. It is a substantial food bearing a rich and savory tomato sauce and combined with cheese. Serve it as it is or combine it with leftover or quickly prepared meats as in the following recipe:

Mexican Spaghetti

Melt butter in frying pan and brown in it—
1 cup (or more) diced cooked ham
1 medium green pepper, chopped
1 medium onion, chopped.
Push to one side of frying pan and heat in other side—
1 large (24-oz.) can cooked spaghetti in tomato sauce with cheese.

Place spaghetti on platter and surround with a border of the browned meat. Garnish with sprigs of parsley. Serves 4.

Faith Clarke's SHOPPING TIPS FOR BUDGETEERS

(These are delightful shopping days and both shops and feminine shoppers are fairly blooming with spring ideas and pretties. Our shopping column lady gives you both festive and practical ideas for the season.)

First of all, steal a march on those moths! Prevents a blitzkrieg on your favorite furs or cloth garments. Snellenburgs are advising early storage and at a price as low as any in the city for equal service—2% of your own valuation. Minimum charge, $2 for fur or fur-trimmed coats, $1 for untrimmed coats, fur scarfs, fur jackets, men's suits or coats. This includes protection against fire, theft, moths, heat. The store's frigid storage vaults are on the premises, and are processed to prevent skins drying out. Bonded messengers.

Every girl and woman would like to look as graceful in slacks as does a Hollywood star! Knowing this, Snellenburg's Sports Wear Corner has gone in for "Hollywood" slack suits. They are excellently man tailored yet have a graceful but subtle femininity of line. Jackets new torso length. Priced from $5.98 to $19.95. The good looking materials are rayon spuns and spun linens of delightful weave. There are various colors, including the new covert tan, soft blue, cinnamon, red, etc. Sizes 12 to 20.

A different Fashion Show! Truly South American! Entitled "Romantic Brazil." On Monday, April 21st, Snellenburg's Auditorium will present the very newest of styles based on authentic Brazilian costumes. Brazil is Portuguese, not Spanish, and an old custom is that of certain costumes for the professions and trades. These have been adapted, by artists, for fashionable women. The 1941 versions are thrilling. Costume jewelry, including waist and slave ornaments, are stunning. Models to be featured in "Romantic Brazil" are as exotic as the clothes they will wear.

For years Snellenburgs have been improving grass seed, until I personally feel that their own brand is tops in the area. And this at prices very definitely lower, sometimes as much as a third or more. Yet here comes a grand new Snellenburg seed (the old reliables are still enthroned!), the "Swarthmore." This brand comes 2 million seeds to the pound, enough for 200 sq. ft. It's a splendid combination of Kentucky blue grass, red top, and rye, and is grand for sun and shade. 1 lb., 45c; 5 lbs., $1.98. Get sowing!

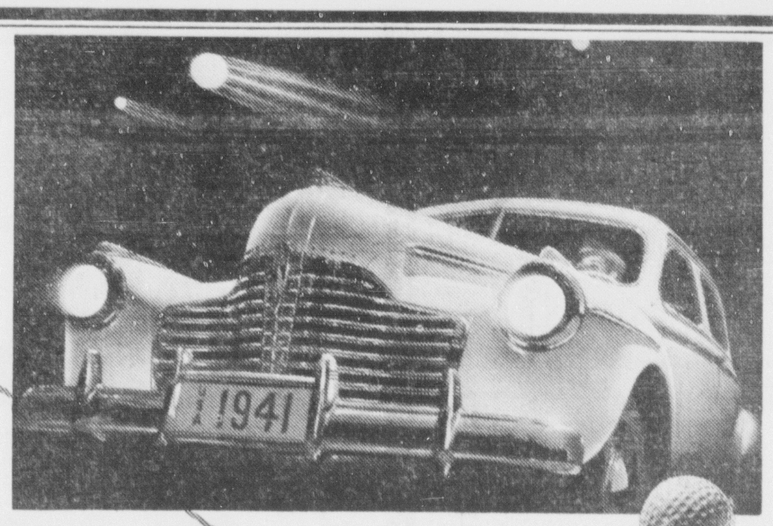
Summer curtains are being restyled. The latest fashion in glamour window petticoats is "The Colonial Lady", so named because of the cascade of four deep flounces (the top flounce being a valance) reaching to the sill or below. The colors are heavenly, and simply magic for a rainy day, besides giving a sort of "blown with the wind" effect. Heavy but airy quality of marquisette, and in blue, rose, peach, green, cream, and champagne. 80" wide, 2¼ yds. long. $1.79 a pair. Matching accessories are bedspreads at $1.99, dressing table flounce, $1.59. Charming.

The Corset Dept. of Snellenburg's Store is going in for its own fashion show for the junior figure. The garments to be modeled will be for both girls and slimmer women. One should make a better study of figure control, and here's our "slim" chance. The show dates are April 17th, 18th, and 19th. It includes the most popular of the Carter foundations and girdles. This is a splendid department, with unusually kind pricing. Radio's delightful Laura May Stuart will speak. Souvenir booklets!

It's long past the first robin and actually time for garden and porch furniture! Snellenburgs have the newest, and Philadelphia made. It's weather resistant metal, enameled in lovely colors, such as soldier blue, French vanilla, seafoam green, beige, etc., and is almost sleepily comfortable. A swank glider costs $17.95 (the department has them up to $39.95) and chairs range from $2.79 to $10.95. Splendid water repellent cushions cost but $1 and increase the decorative effect of this streamlined furniture.

"It's the handsomest public garage I've ever seen!" a woman exclaimed. It is indeed, the new Stephen Girard Garage so conveniently located at Snellenburg's own Clover Street doorstep. Leave your car at the Stephen Girard garage and pay upon return. A Snellenburg sales check entitles you to a nice little reduced parking rate of only 25c and upward for 2 hours or less. Furthermore, you can have all Snellenburg purchases delivered at the Clover Street door. The little street is covered and runs parallel to, and behind, Chestnut.

P. S. Cheery shopping for your money's worth, and more. And do tell the shop folks you're one of my "columnists"! F. C.



Why does a Golf Ball bounce?

EVER notice that a golf ball, when you drop it, bounces higher than something hollow, like a tennis ball?

That's partly because of internal pressures, which also have so much to do with Buick's extra FIREBALL power.

Rubber threads inside a golf ball are packed tight, highly compressed. When flattened against a hard object, like a sidewalk, they come back harder, with more push, and so the ball bounces higher.

A similar thing happens inside a Buick FIREBALL straight-eight cylinder.

Fuel compression pressures are higher here than in any other standard-production automobile engine.

So when the spark jumps in the tightly-packed, fuel-fat ball of gas-mixture at the top of the stroke – the Buick piston goes rushing down with more push, more shove, more power than the same amount of fuel gives up elsewhere.

Result: every Buick engine travels farther per gallon this year than the same-size engines did last year, while Compound Carburetion† with Buick FIREBALL design gives as much as 10% to 15% more miles per gallon.

In fact, if you're buying any car this year, it's pretty important to see and drive a Buick before you're through; it's Number One in smart engineering as well as Number One in solid, rock-bottom, all-round VALUE!

†Optional equipment on the Buick SPECIAL, standard on all other models.

effort began. From no matter what angle it is viewed, it seems deplorable. Obviously, if Mr. Roosevelt intends to use Mr. Hopkins largely in order to direct the lend-lease operations himself, an additional burden will be imposed upon the President which he should not carry and which no human being could carry without faltering.

—o—

ON the other hand, if his purpose is to make Mr. Hopkins the real boss, then the situation is indeed frightening. No unprejudiced person can look at Mr. Hopkins (this has nothing to do with his health) and believe he measures up to the job. No informed man can review his record, either before 1932 or since, and consider him equipped by training, experience, ability or physique for so huge a responsibility. It is not surprising that there should be widespread perturbation over the President's act. Here is a job which clearly calls for a strong, competent, experienced man. He has selected a weak, inexperienced, notoriously incompetent man, whose chief claim to fame is that as WPA Administrator he wasted more money than any other public official in history and permitted an agency for the relief of "human misery" to become saturated with politics to the point of a national scandal. Mr. Roosevelt has said that the first thing is to win this war, and the idea of the lease-lend bill was to do exactly that. It is not an unfair statement to say that it would occur to few besides the President that Mr. Hopkins is the kind of man with whom to win a war.

—o—

SIMULTANEOUSLY with the announcement of the Hopkins selection Mr. Roosevelt liquidated the old liaison committee, headed by Mr. Morgenthau, which had been co-ordinating foreign and domestic military purchasing since late in 1939. The authorized statement was made that it was at Mr. Morgenthau's own suggestion that his committee was dissolved. This statement was partly to justify the Hopkins appointment and partly to save the face of the long-suffering Mr. Morgenthau. The truth, as known to his friends, is that Mr. Morgenthau was very badly upset when he learned what had been done.

—o—

HE takes this as he has taken a good many other kicks in the pants — with a meekness unmatched since Moses. Whatever his inner sense of injury, when once the order falls from the Roosevelt tongue, he not only acquiesces but insists that that was what he really believed all the time. Upon more than one occasion, when Mr. Roosevelt has publicly pulled the props from under him, Mr. Morgenthau, as soon as he could get his breath, has rushed up on the roof to cheer. He has not done exactly that this time, but that the suggestion of the liquidation of his own committee came from him is enough to make those who know the facts laugh—if the situation were not too grave for laughter.

—o—

DISMAYED, as many people here are, at the Hopkins selection, apparently there is nothing that can be done about it. Those who want to stand well with the President dare not criticize the appointment or express their apprehensions. It is the sort of criticism which he would take as a personal reflection. And, anyhow, the disposition among his sattelites is to stamp any criticism as unpatriotic. So theyy take it — this Hopkins appointment—without public protest, though nearly everybody, except the little "inner circle" White House clique, knows it is an indefensible selection, which had Congress believed likely before action on the lend-lease bill might have blocked that bill.

—o—

THE best that can be hoped is that the cocky Mr. Hopkins, with his cheap wisecracks and his so-called "central staff," will not last long. While they do, a great deal of publicity but very little progress can be expected. In justification of his appointment, nothing is thinner than the argument that he is the logical selection because of the warmth of his reception in England by Mr. Winston Churchill, who practically made him a member of his family, after his arrival as the personal representative of Mr. Roosevelt. If, labeling him his "most intimate friend," Mr. Roosevelt instead had sent over the White House cook or his Hyde Park gardener, Mr. Churchill's welcome would have been just as warm.

BRISTOL FACES NEWTOWN IN OPENER WHILE BENSALEM TRAVELS TO MEET LANGHORNE

Schoolboy League Season Starts This Afternoon As Campion Elects Hopkins To Pitch for Locals — Devoe To Start Bensalem Off Right

By John W. Gill

Summer slid in with a bang and spring sifted into a temporary hideout. They went into mourning on every corner in Flatbush as the ribald Dodgers dropped their third straight to their despised rivals, the Giants. Even the A's went haywire on a two game winning streak.

Thus far no pop bottles have landed on Eddie Rommel's noggin and the balk rule and infield fly flurry hasn't had time to flair. What's more, Larry McPhail hasn't said a word fit to print concerning his Brooklynites.

In a nutshell, Bristol opens its season officially today at Newtown when it faces the Lower Division champions in what may prove to be a tell-tale engagement. The most important news emanating from the town that seemingly reaches out to grab ball players from any corner is that Al Driver, he of the sliding left arm, will not be around for active duty this spring. For lo and behold Driver hit the four year mark last season.

Bensalem, unbeaten and flying high toward a title, literally hits the championship road at Langhorne, where the Redskins will test the Owls to the limit. Ted Devoe will probably get the call against Langhorne's promising Bob Mitchell.

Bristol trots an untried unit out on the field against the champs. However, the tension was somewhat eased when it was learned that Driver had passed the four year competitive limit. Driver's ability was popularly accepted as tops in the district. He practically twirled the Indians to a gonfalon last year. His no hitter stung Langhorne in the opening fuss of the campaign.

Jimmy Hopkins will be Bristol's likely starter, while Bill Fox will retaliate with his ace, Bill Keyser. Campion's infield may have Barouth, Tazik, Massi and Cialella manning the four spots, while Ruby, Accardi and Boccardo will get the outfield call. Capable Army Capriotti will don the mask.

Newtown, who dropped a practice fuss to Richboro by a 7 to 5 count, but later improved to sting Doylestown, 3-2, will have Fischer catching Keyser. Pidcock, Rude, Dafter and Scott will take care of the infield. Harrison, Freyhafer and Hilsee will chase flies.

"We'll be no more than fair," says young Tom Campion, who still sees his men not extending themselves in actual combat. "So far we've looked good," is the cry of Newtown's Bill Fox. And there you have it. The champion and a likely challenger meet right at the start.

Bensalem faces Langhorne in a confident mood. The Redskins, not expected to offer anyone much resistance, showed equally as much as any district squad in thumping Fallsington Tuesday. Yet they are not as ripe as Bensalem, a team that has shown fine form in three successive triumphs.

The Owls will field the same well balance line-up that has scintillated during the forepart of the campaign. Devoe and Fleming will probably start, while stickwork will be supplied by such men as Jones, Scheerer, Strickler and Killian.

Langhorne starts their ace Bob Mitchell, on the mound, and Bob Wheatley behind the plate. Slater and Gotwald are the only other veterans in an inexperienced but hard trying cast.

And it will all be done without Morrisville in the league. Only intra-mural baseball will be played in Bulldogtown for the first time since the loop's existence. Financial reverses and lack of student interest were the causes given for the curtailment of the sport.

ABE SIMON TO REFEREE FREE-FOR-ALL BOUT

TRENTON, N. J., Apr. 18—A corking card will be offered at the Trenton Arena when weekly wrestling will be resumed tonight. Heading the list of stars that are slated to appear, is Abe Simon, giant heavyweight fighter who recently fought 13 rounds with Champion Joe Louis and is rematched for a return bout in New York shortly. This will be Simon's only public appearance prior to the return engagement with Louis and his guest performance as referee will be eagerly awaited by the fans.

Simon will referee the free-for-all, that hilarious new form of mat entertainment. The contestants are Felix Slovikowski, the mammoth Pole; Al Norcus, popular conquerer of Count Von Zuppe; Jesse Appolo, the American adonis, and John Melas, the clever Greek.

Another prime attraction will be the return of the girl athletes to the local canvas. Zoszkt Burska, the Polish beauty and possessor of an undefeated record here, will tangle with Grace Costello, the Hoboken tomboy and reputed to be undefeated in 25 mat encounters. This pair of amazons should provide some of the liveliest action ever witnessed here. The girl grapplers have always provided top-notch entertainment and their re-appearance will be welcomed by the customers.

The finish struggle will pit two of the most powerful brawlers that have shown here this season. They are the ugliest wrestler in the world, the Swedish Angel, and Benny Rosen, the Hebrew giant. This pair fought a torrid draw some time ago and tonight they will settle their differences over the finish route.

The great Don Evans, handsome young Hungarian idol, will face clever Jack Claybourne, and Nanjoj Singh, Hindu cobra-hold expert, will vie with Mike Haller, Scranton coal miner.

The first bout will start at 8.30 p. m., and there is a strong advance sale.

SOFTBALL LEAGUE SEEKS 3 MORE TEAMS

At a meeting of the Bristol Softball League held last night in the Knights of Columbus home, Radcliffe street, it was decided to extend the limit for entry into the circuit. The loop seeks three more entries to make a 12-team circuit.

Any interested party desiring entry into the circuit may either come to the next meeting or contact Danny DiLorenzo, president, 229 Cedar street.

A special meeting will be held Thursday night, April 24, in the K. of C. Home. All managers are requested to be present.

Defenders Like These Papers, Army Men Say

Nothing makes a selective service man in camp happier than a letter from home or a home-town newspaper in the daily mail, army officials said recently after an extensive survey.

Next in order, the selective service youth likes sweets such as candy, cookies and chocolates—and chewing gum!

Officers say that on the march the gum helps keep the boys from drinking too much water and from dipping into their lunch ration.

Other offerings which bring a smile of pleasure to the enrollee include a general repertoire of utilities among which are books of stamps, flashlights, a towel now and then, toilet articles, and reading materials.

Officers say that if relatives want to be sure their addressee gets what's mailed to him, they should address the letter or package in this way: Name first, his company or battery second, his regiment third, and, lastly the name of the post office.
